

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

It is one thing for me to purchase a CD or to go out to a movie, but the local air waves shouldn't be used for any source of positive or negative propaganda, if that is what this is. In order to be completely fair CBS should also air the same sort of documentary about the President.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
